County Pomona Sessions Will Be Held in Addison March 3 and 4

Program for Annual Two-Day Conference Given by Officers—Sessions to Be Held in True Gymnasium Churches to Furnish Meals—Reports of State Convention Scheduled.

Addison Grange will play host to the Steuben County Pomona at a two day session to be held here Wednesday and Thursday, March3 and 4. Business sessions will be held in the True Gymnasium. Meals during the session will be furnished by the churches of Addison for the delegates.

The convention will be opened in the fifth degree Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock with Master George Andrus in charge. The morning program will be as follows: minutes of the last meeting, opening in the fourth degree, opening song, welcome from the Addison Grange by Master Ralph Hand, response by Master Andrus, roll call of committees, report of Fire Relief Association by A. K. Dennis, report of Farmers and Traders Life Insurance, Frank H. Little, report of service and hospitality committee by Mrs. Byron Travis, report of national liability agents, suggestions for good of the order, new business state Grange reports, announcements and closing song.

There will be a recess during which lecturers of the various Granges will meet in charge of Pomona Lecturer, Mrs. Pauline Armstrong, Addison. Mrs. Byron Travis, Hornellsville, will be in charge of a conference of the Service and Hospitality committee.

The afternoon session Wednesday will be called to order at which time Harold M. Stanley, secretary of the State Grange will deliver an address. Miss Mildred Lyke, Howard Grange, will conduct a program of entertainment. State Grange delegates of Pomona will give their reports. Past lecturers will be awarded gold and blue ribbons by Neola Chase.

An address will be delivered by the State Deputy Master, Claire Arnburg, after which Leon Partridge, Avoca Grange will lead a discussion on "What I would Like To See Done in Pomona Grange." There will be a roll call and report of Granges. The revolving education fund will be explained by Mrs. Neola Chase, Bath Grange, after which the resolutions committee will report and a play "The Wrong Mrs. Smith" will be given by the Canisteo Grange.

The evening of Wednesday, Mar. 3 will open with a song, grand march of officers and committees. Drill by the court ladies, conferring of the fifth degree by the Pomona officers. "The Farm in 1937" will be the subject of the program arranged by the local Grangers.

Thursday morning, March 4, will be given over to a talk on rural electrification, reports of state delegates to be continued, a discussion on the farm out look for this year. Richard Stowell, Lindley Grange, will lead this discussion. The afternoon sessions, marking the close of the two day meeting, will consist of a talk "Life in Newfoundland" by Rev. Garland G. Lacey of the local Methodist Church, an address on soil conservation plans by William Stempfle, county agriculture agent and a question box.

Members of the committees are; Memorial, Lola Cochran, Bath; Mrs. Cora Bailey, Addison; Mrs. Jennie Slayton, Cohocton; legislative, Kenneth Ward, Bath, Joseph Keller, Hammondsport, James A. Little, Bath; finance, Leo Partridge, Avoca; Watson Johnson, Cameron Mills; Ernest Slayton, Cohocton; service and hospitality, Mrs. Byron Travis, Hornell; Mrs. Alfred Hann, Bath, Mrs. Lelia Jacobus, Hammondsport, Mrs. Leah Church. Cameron Mills, Mrs. Mildred Damoth, Bath.

Executive committee members are; Merlyn Buntin, D. B. Damoth and Lawrence Partridge.

The officers who will preside at the two day session are; Master, George Andrus; overseer, Byron Travis; lecturer, Pauline Armstrong; steward, Stanley Osborne; assistant steward, Francis Acker; chaplain, Lela Cochran; treasurer, William Rowe; secretary, Frances Chase; gate keeper, Clare Roberts; Pomona, Pearl Mattoon; Flora, Ruth Hallet; Ceres, E. Nobel; lady assistant steward, Velma Melanbacker; deputy state master, Claire Arnburg; juvenile deputy, Mrs. Helen Arnburg; pianist, Mrs. Ivah Jacobus.

Democrats Unsettled on Candidate for Mayor

Charles Brewster was nominated by the Democrats to oppose Mayor Angelo Sisto, Republican, in the election to be held here March 16. Mr. Brewster has long been active in Democratic politics here. George Hargrave presided at the meeting. John O'Keefe and Bernard Mullaney were elected as secretaries and William Cooper, T. C. Tobin and Bernard Mullaney were appointed as members of the vacancy committee.

Rumor has it that Mr. Brewster will not accept the nomination and that a substitute will be placed in nomination by the committee to fill vacancy. The trustee candidates on the ticket will be Francis Hill and Eugene Wade. The same source of information says Eugene Savacool will be the Democratic standard bearer.

William Brooks Dies of Heart Trouble Thursday

Word was received here last week of the death of William R. Brooks of Owego which occurred Thursday night, due to heart trouble from which he had suffered since last August.

Mr. Brooks was born in Hornell on December 22, 1862, the son of William R. and Jane Simmons Brooks. The greater part of Mr. Brooks' life was spent in Woodhull he having moved from here to Owego three years ago. He was a painted and decorator by trade.

Mr. Brooks was first married to Carrie Saulsman to whom were born two sons Ren and Victor, he was later married to Miss Jennie Ensign and to them were born seven children.

Deceased is survived by the widow; two daughters, Mrs Wilda Sayre of Osceola and Florence Brooks at home; six sons,Ren of Spokane, Wash., Leonard of Texas, Edward and Robert of Lewiston, Donald, serving in the U. S. Army and William at home.

The funeral was held Saturday at 2 o'clock at the Estes Funeral Home in Owego with burial in an Owego cemetery.

Patrol Contest Will Begin For BSA Troop 27

Boy Scouts of Troop 27, this village will participate in a patrol contest to begin next meeting, March 4 and to close April 29.

This will be a contest in which the silver fox and eagle patrols will compete for honors. An overnight hike will be the award to the winning patrol. They may have their choice of the hike or an overnight trip to some historic spot.

Announcement of the contest was made at a meeting held Thursday night in the old school building under the direction of Scoutmaster McCaig. Plans for the contest were announced by Harry Mullen. The contest is based on points of the Scout oath and law and advancement, as follows: Attendance 1 point, payment of dues on time one point, wearing of uniform to meetings one point, attending church four points, passing tests two points for each test, passing merit badge five points, bringing in a new Scout five points, conduct at meetings and on hikes one point, inspection one point, attending patrol hikes five points, attending patrol meetings five points, doing good turn as a patrol project 10 points.

The idea of this contest is to foster the patrol idea in the local troop and to develop leadership within the patrol group.

Mrs. Lizzie Shelly of Gaines visited her sister, Mrs. John Allen Sunday.

Birthday Cake, Tureen Dinner, Given Mrs. Bates

Mrs. Eunice Bates was honored Tuesday at a gala 10[illegible] birthday party given at the W[illegible] Baptist Church of which she is the oldest member. This active centenarian was similarly honored last year when she passed the century mark.

A tureen dinner was served at noon. The birthday cake, with one large candle representing one hundred years and one small candle for the one year, decorated the honor guest's table.

Two others, Marian Hibbard and Eloise Whittenhall, who observed their birthday anniversaries were also present at the dinner.

After the dinner a few numbers were given, the first a hymn transcription by Mrs. D. H. Davis; songs, "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Blessed Assurance" were led by the Rev. Davis; Scripture reading of Proverbs 31 and prayer by the Rev. J. Wesley Babcock. Brief remarks were given by the Rev. Davis.

A sunshine box was presented Mrs. Bates by Mrs. Rose Wiley, a purse was also given her.

Despite her years Mrs. Bates is in unusually good health and she states she feels as well as she did ten years ago. She is still able to do her own housework and possesses a keen mind. Her philosophy is that, "hard work never hurt anyone unless of course, one overdid it", and "be independent", that's the nicest way to get along in life. This idea is still exemplified in her life.

Mrs. Bates was born near East Troupsburg in a log cabin built by her father Parley B. Miller who emigrated from Chenango County in 1834. She married Eli Bates who died in 1919. To them were born three sons, Erastus, deceased; Frank of South Addison and Horace of South Dakota. There are also grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Many relatives and friends unable to attend the affair Tuesday called at her home on Monday to extend felicitations.

Guests of the day were: Mrs. Peter Crispino, [illegible]ed Post; Mrs. Rose J. Rucco[illegible] Cora Brotzman, Mrs. Thomas [illegible]g of Corning; Mrs Robert [illegible] of Addison: Mrs. Minnie Cilley, Elizabeth

MRS. EUNICE BATES, CENTENARIAN

South Addison Woman Celebrates Her 101st Birthday Tuesday

Why Mayor Sisto Was Not Opposed

Now it can be told. The caucus is over and there may be some wonder why Dan J. Colbert was not nominated for mayor on the Republican ticket. He had started his campaign several weeks ago. It is believed he got into the race on the suggestion of Supervisor Goff when both understood Mayor Angelo Sisto would not seek reelection. However, when Mr. Sisto decided to run, Mr. Colbert withdrew for party harmony.

Peter Stewart Funeral Held Here Monday

The funeral of Peter H. Stewart who died at his home here Friday forenoon following a stroke of apoplexy which he suffered Tuesday was held at the home Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. J. Wesley Babcock, pastor of Woodhull Methodist Episcopal Church, officiated. Burial was made in the family plot of the Stewart Cemetery.

Mr. Stewart was born in Woodhull, February 27, 1871, the son of James M. and Wealthy Bly Stewart. With the exception of a few years spent on a farm near Elkland, he had lived his entire life in this vicinity. Mr. Stewart was a member of Woodhull Grange.

Deceased is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lena Cook Stewart and the following children, Mrs. Harold Bishop, Osceola, Floyd Stewart of Knoxville, Adelbert Stewart of Elkland and Lena, Robert and Lewis Stewart at home; a brother, Charles of Addison and a half-brother, A. J. Colvin of Borden; three grand children, Bonny Gale Bishop, Osceola; Myrtle M. and Richard Stewart of Knoxville.

Six Scouts and scouters from Woodhull attended the Hornell District Rally at the Lincoln School, Hornell on Monday night, February 22. Scouters David H. Davis and Walter Reynolds and Scouts Myron Leach, Gene Cilley, Elmer Ackerman and Asa Murray represented the Woodhull Troop No. 39.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Housman, son William and Mrs. William Husted of Corning, called on Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Husted Sunday.

Mrs. Bates Observes 101st Birth Day

Born February 23, 1836. This is not a typographical error, but it marks the birthday of Mrs. Eunice Bates, local resident who celebrated her 101st birthday Tuesday.

Mrs. Bates was interviewed by the editor of this paper last week and was as keenly alert as many people several years her junior. An interesting point to the interviewer was the fact that Mrs. Bates was born in a log cabin in this county, had lived here all her life, and today is enthusiastic on things of today.

A biographical sketch of Mrs. Eunice Bates would have to contain events through the greatest part of the history of the United States. She saw brothers go to the Civil War and return, the war which united the nation, she saw relatives and friends embark for the war with Spain which first established the United States as a world nation and she saw the coming and conclusion of the World War which made the United States of America the world's leading financier and producer.

All these she has seen, the introduction of the mechanical reaper from hand work, mechanical plows and other farm machinery, first trains in the southern tier, when wood was burned as fuel, the introduction of the motor car, the growth of the industrial revolution in America and the return to the soil of many of the industrialists. She has been keenly conscious of these changes throughout her life and has been able to view the picture in the light of past experiences. Truly her life might be labeled "Transition."

Parley B. Miller, her father, traced his ancestry to the Mayflower and her mother, Elizabeth Ann Miner, who traced her ancestry to Connecticut and thence back to Holland. Miss Miner lived in Greene, N. Y. at the time of her marriage to Mr. Miller, father of Mrs. Bates.

They came into Troupsburg from Norwich in 1835 by horse. Many times the mother was forced to relieve the horse's load by carrying first one child and then another. The section was so dense a wilderness that children were taken from [illegible] when they were felling [illegible] fall on the cabin and destroy it and

Residents Making Changes

Many residents are making changes here this week, among them are: Mr. and Mrs. Orrie Niles who are leaving the Carl Carpenter farm for their new home in Niles, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. George Murray and family who have spent the past two years on the J. C. Brown farm will move to the Carpenter place. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lamphear of Canisteo will reside on the J. C. Brown farm. Lester Lewis and family are moving to Adidson from the Lloyd Brotzman farm. This place will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Leon Higby. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Payne will have charge of the Lewis Ellis farm in Jasper. Mr. and Mrs. Coral Vance are moving from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Brewster Vance to the Chester Lyon farm.

Legion Safety Committee To Meet Friday

Chief of police Elmer Bovee, who is chairman of the American Legion Safety Committee, has called a meeting of that committee for Friday night at 7:30 o'clock in the home of Irving R. Gladstone. This committee will cooperate with the county and state committees in the promotion of a national safety drive.

It is planned to have speakers in the high schools of Addison and Woodhull March 12 at the Friday morning assembly periods. Mr. Gladstone is a member of the local committee with S. G. Ricker, Mr. Bovee and Walter Reynolds of Woodhull. This is an annual drive.

Mrs. Curtis Gives Party For Girl Scouts

Immediately following the Thursday meeting at headquarters, all registered members of the Addison Girl Scout Troop, who were able, assembled at Mrs. Dixon Curtis's home where they enjoyed a delicious supper served by the committee members, Mrs. Curtis acting as hostess. Games and songs were also enjoyed. After supper plans were made for a Girl Scout assembly in March at the high school.

Committee members present were: Mrs. Matthew Whitmore, Mrs. Peter Laffkas, Mrs. Dixon Curtis, Miss Alice Bailey, Mrs. L. E. Handy, Mrs. Francis Hill. Mrs. Irving Gladstone, Mrs. Varn, Mrs. Lynn Taylor.

Girls present were: Barbara Whitmore, Martha Laffkas, Katherine Lyons, Waneta Mead, Marie Bebout, Sylvia Schoonover, Helen Auringer, Helen Lyons, Janet Whitmore, Gayle Mapes, Frances Colburn, Vivian Jackson, Mary Lyons.

Leaders present were: Mrs. Harold Smith, Miss Jeannette Dykins.

WOODHULL GRANGE

Davis, children Martha Betty, Ruth Esther, and John Brewer, Mrs. Nora Husted, Mrs. Franklyn Miller, Fred Schwartz, Henry Lorenz, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Symonds, daughter Gwendolyn, Mr. and Mrs. Chelmer Grist, children Eileen and Ellis, Dan Hulbert, Raymond Hulbert, Grover Hatter, Sherman and Hugh Schoonover, Myrtle Paul, Ethlyn Paul, Hugh Paul, Erwin Paul, Pierce Kells, Mrs. Emma Niles and the complimented guests, Mr. and Mrs. Orrie Niles.

RAISING FUNDS FOR ST. CATHERINE'S

Women of the Catholic Daughters of America are conducting a campaign to raise funds for St. Catherine's Church debt. They have been raising this fund for the past week and ask the support of members of the congregation and friends toward the cause.

Addison and vicinity contributed a carload of merchandise—potatoes, clothing, canned goods and dry vegetables to the flood sufferers of the Ohio Valley. The loading crew were: left to right—Decatur Clark, Kenneth Armstrong and James Putnam.

E. Ray Hardenbrook Saves County Large Sum by Audit

Bath, Feb. 24—In one transaction E. Ray Hardenbrook, Steuben County Commissioner of Public Welfare, has saved taxpayers five times his annual salary or, in other words, has saved enough to pay his salary for the entire term of three years and left a liberal margin. Mr. Hardenbrook has achieved statewide recognition because of his ability as an administrative officer and this remarkable saving indicates that his office is being operated upon the highest possible level of efficiency.

In Steuben County the Work Relief Bureau is operated as an independent agency with its own office. The Home Relief Department was under Mr. Hardenbrook's jurisdiction. August 28, 1936 the TERA forwarded to the head of the Work Bureau report of an audit covering activities from April 1, 1934 to September 30, 1935, recommending definite deductions of $11,178.52. In this connection the report said:

"Our Claims Division has been instructed to apply this deduction against future claims submitted for reimbursement—you will also note the auditor has recommended additional possible deductions of $4,493.32".

The Work Bureau had been discontinued, and records distributed to other offices, when this audit report was received. Therefore the report was sent to the County Attorney. Mr. Hardenbrook requested the county Attorney to give him a list of deductions, both positive and possible, that he might work out with the TERA a program to salvage for the county some of the items recommended for deduction out of the total of $15,671.84.

As a result of Mr. Hardenbrook's work the TERA advised that if the Board of Supervisors would appropriate $4,581.73 the claim against the county would be settled. This appropriation was made January 17, 1937 and Mr. Hardenbrook was authorized to settle the matter with the TERA. Not yet satisfied all possible had been accomplished, Mr. Hardenbrook opened negotiations with the TERA and induced it to accept in full payment of positive and possible deductions $1,727.35. This constitutes a direct saving to the county of $13,994.49, or approximately five and one-half years' salary of the welfare commissioner.

The County Attorney, members of the Board of Supervisors and state officials in close touch with Mr. Hardenbrook's work have praised him highly for his ability in salvaging this large sum which, otherwise, would have been a direct financial loss to taxpayers. One of the interesting features of Mr. Hardenbrook's accomplishment is that it was a saving effected entirely outside his department.

Dance Nets $27 For Red Cross

Members of the Odd Fellows and women of the Rebekahs netted $27 for the Red Cross for the flood sufferers at a dance held Friday night in the I. O. O. F. hall. Music was donated by Squire Husted's four-piece orchestra for round and square dancing. Refreshments were served by the ladies. Plans were made for a party to be held March 5 in the same hall.

OPPOSITION GROWS

Perhaps it is a surprise to President Roosevelt to see the wave of criticism rolling up across the country in opposition to his request for power to tie the hands of the conscientious members of the Supreme Court. Yet public opinion is being registered in a number of different ways, the opinion that for once the man in the WhiteHouse did not have a handful of rabbit's feet in his pocket when he wrote that slurring message designed to influence Congress into increasing his personal power to dictatorial proportions.

Naturally it is expected that many of the publications which opposed Mr. Roosevelt for reelection, would now be opposed to any such radical measure as he asks. The Christian Science Monitor, recognizing that fact, contacted a large number of papers which supported the President in the last campaign. Of 75 telegrams received in answer to the questionnaire sent, there were 19 papers favoring the President's proposal, 4 noncommittal, and 52 which withheld support. These replies indicate that among the strongly pro-Roosevelt papers in 1936, more than two-thirds are vigorously opposed, critical, or disturbed over this attempt to go over the heads of the people to achieve court sanction for unconstitutional laws.

Many of the letters were outspoken in denouncing the Roosevelt plan. One which represents the sentiments of many a paper replying comes from the Montgomery Advertiser, down in the deep, deep south in Alabama. The telegram reads:

"The Advertiser has been an ardent supporter of Mr. Roosevelt since before his first nomination, although it has now and then disagreed with him vigorously. The Advertiser disapproves of that feature of his judicial-reform bill which has brought him under the suspicion that he desires to achieve personal control of the Supreme Court. It has warned him frankly that he is about to [illegible] other directions. American public opinion is plainly shocked at his bold demand and may not come back to him if he does not have a care now.—Grover C. Hall, Editor."

One thing is stressed by Roosevelt henchmen who are leading the publicity campaign to emasculate the Supreme Court. They tell the public that the court should not be allowed to decide laws are unconstitutional against the judgment of members of Congress and the President. But they forget all about the fact most of the radical New Deal legislation which has been negated by the court, originated as Roosevelt "must" bills which were written out by the smart young lawyers hanging around the White House and sent to Congress with orders from the "chief" they must be passed. And a large percentage of these bills were rushed through Congress which few members understood at all.

The National Grange has now come out in opposition to the court packing plan and protests are pouring into Washington from every section of the country. One Congressman stated he had received nearly 2,000 letters and telegrams from constituents, and only one had favored handing the court over to the President.

LIFTING THE CURTAIN

To friends of afflicted persons there are some things which are worse than death of their loved ones. And most anyone would agree that incurable insanity falls in this class. Medicine has seemed to do little in most cases of insanity, and many a family has known for years the sorrow of that living death; a friend who remains in body only.

About 5 per cent of the inmates of U. S. insane asylums are there because of a deteriorated mental-emotional condition called praecox, or split personality called schizophrenia. And hope has been kindled in friends of some of these cases by the recent arrival in this country of Dr. Sakel of Vienna, who has cured many people of dementia praecox by the use of insulin.

Dr. Sakel stumbled on his cure almost by accident. Several years ago he affected cures of morphine addicts by dosing them with insulin, on the theory that morphinism is due to too much adrenalin in the system and insulin counteracts adrenalin. By accidentally giving some of his patients too large doses of insulin he shocked them into comas, and when they recovered these persons' personality he found had remarkably changed. Since the problem of curing a schizophrenic is the problem of shaking up his ingrown personality, Dr. Sakel tried shocking doses of insulin to accomplish that purpose.

Speaking recently at the New York Academy of medicine Dr. Sakel frankly admitted he did not know how and why his cure works, except that it does. It is complicated, being divided into three stages. During the second, or shock stage of treatment the doctor has to nearly kill his patients with large doses of insulin which induce a state of coma. Despite the danger Dr. Sakel has only lost five patients out of several hundred he has treated.

In the early days of his experiments Dr. Sakel supposed that only recent cases of dementia praecox could be cured with his insulin treatment. Later he found that some—though not all—chronic cases more or less improvement was possible, the results obtained being well worth the efforts.

And so again we learn that medical science which has knocked for centuries at a closed door, has at last begun to see it open a crack. A great affliction, worse than death, has in some cases been cured by a young doctor who was willing to work and experiment that human beings could be brought out of the fog of insanity into the light of understanding. The cure has not worked in all cases—it is so delicate a process that few doctors have as yet undertaken it—yet to have made a beginning is to credit another great victory to medical science.

Slowly man is harnessing the many arms of science to his use. Many diseases have been cured in late years which baffled men for ages, and each new venture into the land of new cures—each lifting of the curtain has brought happiness to thousands and paved the way for further explorations into the realm of improved health. What person having a friend living that life which is worse than death, would not give his all of material things to see the light of sanity again illumine the eyes of that loved one?

MILK PRICE PROBLEMS

Addison people, both on our farms and in the village, have suffered a serious blow because of a deep cut in the price of milk delivered to the local Renken Dairy plant. According to a man who should be well informed in the milk business, Renkens are not themselves to blame for this disastrous cut in price, for the price they pay for milk is governed by what they receive and their market has lately been hurt by cut-price dealers. These dealers are said to have secured milk not far from this vicinity, juggled it into interstate milk and then used it to a steal part of the Renken market at a cut-price.

So farmers who have sold their milk to these drifting buyers have been the innocent means of destroying, or seriously impairing the livelihood of their brother farmers. Yet no amount of words written in condemnation of the cut-price dealers, or the farmers who sell to them can cure a situation which has been growing into more of a problem each of the last seven years.

When we get to the bed-rock bottom of the farm problem in this part of the state; it simmers down [illegible] farmers around here have been putting their eggs all in one basket. Back in the period from 1919 until about 1925, the prices received by New York farmers for whole milk stampeded a great number of them into increasing their dairies, and depending less upon the diversified crops which at one time furnished part of their cash income. This resulted in a temporary prosperity for this particular region which has been followed by about eight years of milk price famine that caused a large percentage of the farmers around here to draw in their belts, until many of them were sawing their backbones in two.

There are thousands of New York dairymen who now have come to the conclusion it is a mistake to depend solely on one cash crop like milk. Some of them are raising a crop of wheat or potatoes. Others have established profitable sidelines of chickens or turkeys. Farmers in some sections of the state are netting good sums by buying feeder lambs, keeping them for three months and selling to the slaughter houses. A few have successfully raised and fatted beef cattle.

One farm plant which has sprung into favor by leaps and bounds the last few years is the soybean. It has a diversity of uses being suitable for high grade hay and ensilage, as well as the shelled beans. This plant is high in protein value and when fed on the farm as ensilage or hay replaces considerable of the costly protein feeds which are purchased so freely by New York farmers in feeding operations. The beans themselves have become a fairyland for research chemists and are now manufactured into everything from automobile steering wheels to doorbell buttons. Soybeans are offering a challenge to present-day chemistry the development of which should soon solve some of the problems of what farmers can do with the products of the farm.

And one of the best things about soybeans is the fact that the more a farmer grows this leguminous plant, the better his soil becomes, as it is a nitrogen fixer.

The wide-awake farmer is looking for a way out of the woods of low milk prices, and turning to supplementing crops for relief from his present unfortunate condition. With this newest slash in milk prices he could do worse than experiment somewhat in other money crops which may hold the solution to his problems. Many farmers will try a test plot of soybeans this year.

The feeling grows in many quarters that the President may have done himself serious harm by his proposal for reorganizing the judiciary. More and more Democratic Senators and Representatives are saying "No!" to his advocacy of a 15-member Supreme Court.

Court Ruling on Convict Goods Called Pointer for Roosevelt

By MARK SULLIVAN

THE surprise attending Mr. Roosevelt's action about the Supreme Court was a double kind. It was a surprise in the sense that Mr. Roosevelt had with great pains kept it secret until the moment he read [illegible] newspaper [illegible] his success in keeping it secret gave him pleasure. Callers who talked with him after he had put the sensation forth found him more interested in the success of his secrecy than in other phases of the momentous step he had taken; he said, with much pride, that only three people had known of it.

It was a surprise also in the sense that nobody expected it or anything like it. On the contrary, nearly every well informed person expected, so to speak, the absence of any sensational step by the President. Everybody supposed the President had turned his face in the direction of calm and healing. Immediately after the election sources close to him gave out the notion that his second term was to be a period of quiet, and of forgiveness of opponents—an "era of good feeling" said a confidant of the President, Dr. Stanley High, in "Liberty" for January. The same spirit emanated from the President's circle through many channels. Intimates reported the President as feeling that there should be an end to agitation, commotion and public nervousness, that the country must be led into a period of repose and tolerance. This impression permeated the Washington atmosphere.

A dispatch from Washington written by myself November 18 reported Democratic party leaders as feeling assurance that Mr. Roosevelt's second term would be more calm than the first, and that Mr. Roosevelt's whole eight years would be seen in history as merely a period of necessary and wholesome Democratic Jacksonian reform.

Why Mr. Roosevelt should have blasted this atmosphere of quiet with one of the most sensational and provocative actions in American history is a question of which the answer lies in the mysteries of human personality. Mr. Roosevelt's personality is not only a part of the Washington scene in the ordinary sense. Because Congress already has given him such great powers, and because of the prestige of his overwhelming election, his temperament is an essential factor in government.

The general expectation of serenity was confirmed when the Supreme Court on January 4 handed down a decision in which the court seemed to accommodate itself to Mr. Roosevelt, seemed indeed almost to make a consciously amiable gesture toward him. This decision of January 4 made it possible for Mr. Roosevelt's objectives to be attained without necessity of constitutional amendment, or of any change in the court or curb of it.

The January 4 decision of the Supreme Court in the convict-made goods case was immediately recognized by lawyers and students as having far-reaching importance. Several states had passed statutes forbidding the sale within their borders of goods made by convict labor. Thereafter, Congress, in order to aid the states in making such statutes effective, passed the Ashurst-Sumners act. This statute forbade shipment of convict-made goods into any state which outlaws such goods.

The decision upholding the Ashurst-Sumners act seemed to break the jam caused by the court's invalidation of N. R. A. and other New Deal legislation. It seemed to ease the tension between the President and the Supreme Court. The path seemed wide and clear for the attainment of Mr. Roosevelt's objectives, without change in the Constitution or change in the court.

The situation created by the Ashurst-Sumners decision remains. The path opened by this decision remains an easily available and abundantly satisfactory way to attain Mr. Roosevelt's objectives. It is free of the disadvantages of the other ways proposed, whether the President's way or the way of constitutional amendment, or the way of limiting the court's function. Besides, the Ashurst-Sumners way has one immense advantage; it achieves the desired objectives—but at the same time preserves states' rights.

The way opened by the Ashurst-Sumners decision consists of a combination of state and Federal legislation; it conforms to what Mr. Roosevelt himself suggested in his January 6 message to Congress: "Federal laws supplementing state laws."

Any state that wants to can and probably all would, pass statutes forbidding the manufacture or sale of goods made by child labor or made with labor receiving less than a minimum wage, or made under other disapproved conditions. These local laws will, of course, protect the states against the making of such goods or the violation of such standards within their own borders.

Flight From Democracy

By WALTER LIPPMANN

In a short period a lot has been learned about Mr. Roosevelt's judicial reform. He offered his plan, alleging that the "personnel of the Federal judiciary is insufficient to meet the business before the [illegible] insufficient, he said, because there are not enough judges and because twenty-five out of 237 are past seventy years of age. It was promptly discovered by Mr. Franklyn Waltman, of "The Washington Post," that so far as the nine old men of the Supreme Court are concerned, their docket is not congested.

It was then discovered that while the dockets of thirty-four district courts were in arrears on July 30, in only four of these courts were the judges over seventy years of age. It then transpired that there are now nine vacancies in the Federal courts which Mr. Roosevelt has not yet filled, that a year has elapsed and he has not yet filled two vacancies in the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals, that he took nearly eight months to fill the vacancy in the Third Circuit, that he has not yet filled four district judgeships created by Congress last June, that he took a year to fill a vacancy in Missouri, and a year to fill one in New York. If any one asks what he was waiting for, and in so many cases is still waiting for, the answer is that in some he was waiting for the local politicians to agree on candidates and in others he was holding up the patronage till after election.

It was next revealed, also by Mr. Waltman, that under the plan Mr. Roosevelt has proposed, he could name only two additional judges in the ten district courts which are most congested. By this time the claim that the object of the scheme is to expedite justice has become too hollow to impress any one.

So in a very few days it was conceded that the real object of the plan is to force six justices of the Supreme Court to resign and to appoint men who will revise the Constitution. This was confirmed at the White House on Thursday by an inspired statement to the press. It is one of the most extraordinary arguments that ever came from the White House. It is, in brief, that a constitutional amendment to validate the President's plan would take too long to ratify and that it might be defeated. So the White House insists that since Mr. Roosevelt cannot persuade the people to grant him the power he desires, the Congress must give it to him by an act of lawless legality.

I do not know how long it will take for the people to realize the significance of this argument. But it is certainly a marvel, once it has been looked at.

Last June Mr. Roosevelt wrote his own platform. Referring to the Constitution he said that there are many national problems which cannot be handled adequately by the forty-eight separate states and must have "both state and Federal treatment." He then declared that "we have sought and will continue to seek to meet these problems through legislation within the Constitution. If these problems cannot be solved effectively by legislation within the Constitution, we shall seek such clarifying amendment as will assure to the legislatures of the several states and the Congress of the United States, each within its proper jurisdiction, the power to enact those laws which the state and Federal legislatures, within their respective spheres, shall find necessary, in order adequately to regulate commerce, protect public health and safety and safeguard economic security."

On that platform Mr. Roosevelt ran. On that platform he was elected. Since the election there have been no decisions from the Supreme Court which have changed the situation as it was during the campaign. Mr. Roosevelt has proposed no legislation in this Congress which seeks to solve the problems he has in mind "within the Constitution." He has proposed no "clarifying amendment."

Why? Because he has now made up his mind, without consulting any of the recognized leaders of his party, that he cannot draft legislation within the Constitution, because he has come to the conclusion that the people will not consent soon, or perhaps ever, to a "clarifying amendment." And so, he insists on a puppet court, which will give him the power he thinks the people would not give him. Though he carried forty-six states, though he polled 27,000,000 votes, though his party controls more than forty state legislatures, nevertheless he believes the people would not give him the power he wants. So he insists on having it anyway.

That is the situation at the end of the first weeks of the American constitutional crisis, the greatest crisis in seventy years. What the President is asking is that the Congress shall disown the platform on which it was elected, that it shall circumvent the people's sovereign right to amend the Constitution, and that it shall place in his hands the authority to remake that Constitution. Under this scheme Mr. Roosevelt can appoint at least six justices at once, assuming that all nine do not resign in protest if this law is enacted. In any event he will have six henchmen, and if they are young enough, that will mean that for thirty years the court will be the court that Mr. Roosevelt made. It is not to be wondered at that this plan was not disclosed before election.

Though it is an audacious and an ingenious plan, it is at bottom a stupid plan. If by this trick Mr. Roosevelt gets the power he wants, it will not really facilitate his reforms. For the court he creates will not have the respect of the nation, and the Congressmen who do his bidding will never hear the end of it. They will be marked men for the rest of their lives. The legislation which is railroaded through the subservient Congress and the subservient court will be suspect: it will never have the moral authority which resides in laws arrived at by the democratic process. So it is a tragic blunder which will jeopardize the whole program the President has in view, and poison the public mind against it. Mr. Roosevelt should have trusted the people. They have trusted him. He would have gone further toward his objectives, and he would have gone faster, if he had done what democracy requires of its loyal servants, had laid his plans candidly before the people and had used honest argument to obtain their consent.

Our Government of Balanced Powers

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

Among the famous admonitions of George Washington recalled by many Americans on his recent birthday celebration was the following:

"If in the opinion of the people the distribution or modification of the Constitutional powers be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in the way which the Constitution designates. But let there be no change by usurpation; for, though this in one instance may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed."

As this is written that admonition remains strongly in the minds of the American people.

Various members of Congress are pointing out in public utterances the necessity of preserving the independence of our three co-ordinate branches of government — Legislative, Executive, and Judicial— as established in the Constitution to safeguard individual liberties.

Nor are their words unheeded, as public sentiment, expressed in the press and in letters to Congress, demonstrates. Seldom has any public question aroused so widespread, non-partisan a discussion.

Undoubtedly this discussion will continue. And that is an encouraging sign in a republic which lists free speech and full discussion of public questions high among the rights of citizens guaranteed under the Constitution.

It is the province of an independent Congress to make our laws; of an independent Executive to enforce them, and of an independent Judiciary to interpret them.

That is our Constitutional system of government.

Sidney D. MacDowell Celebrates 50th Year in Business in Addison

Main Street Merchant Marks Anniversary of Doing Business in Same Building — Has Expanded Three Times Since Securing Ownership — Interested in Community and Fraternal Life— Employees All Veterans—Thanks People of Addison for Support During Years.

Fifty years in business is a long time, but when one considers that this business was conducted throughout that time in the same building, one can appreciate the record of Sidney D. MacDowell, who will celebrate his 50th business anniversary Monday, March 1.

Sidney MacDowell was born in Steuben County, a son of the late Matthew D. and Mary Darrin MacDowell. The family came to Addison when Mr. MacDowell was 10 years of age and it was here that the business career of Mr. MacDowell was started while he was still in school in the old wood grammar school on Maple street. At one time he was employed in the Chart market, now owned and managed by John E. Chart, son of the founder. He then went to work in the funeral and furniture home of James Baldwin. It was there he learned the undertaking business which has been so much of his life during the past 55 years. Here also he learned the rudiments of the furniture business. And he learned well his lesson for they have stood the test of depressions and panics throughout that time, for there have been no interruptions in the business career started at that time.

In 1882 he went to Hornell where he remained five years under the late Dorr Faulkner. It was there his courtship of Miss Mabel Brundage of Bath, reached fruition for they were married.

February 22, 1887 Mr. MacDowell had severed connections with his former employer and was ready to embark on a business career of his own. He remembers distinctly the date for he wondered if the transaction would be legal owing to the holiday.

Mr. MacDowell had made arrangements to purchase the stock then located where the Red & White store is now located. This stock was owned by Mr. Baldwin. Mr. MacDowell had made arrangements to set up his business in his present building and moved it there and opened for business March 1, 1887.

The building had been owned by James Baldwin but was taken over by J. W. Darrin, uncle of Mr. MacDowell. Mr. Darrin also joined with Mr. MacDowell in the business as a partner. However, he remained in his own business in Corning, leaving the local man to the management and conduct of the furniture and undertaking business here.

Mr. Darrin's interest was sold to the young business man five years later and has been individually owned by Mr. MacDowell since that time. The lone partner carried on for a while but 43 years ago hired a young man by the name of James Erwin to work for him, and today Mr. Erwin is still in his employ and when next August rolls around will have been there 44 years, a record in itself.

When the building was first purchased, there were two floors devoted to the business. At that time only rugs and furniture were handled. Since that time a great deal of space has been added and additional lines included in the business.

Among some of these changes was the motorizing of the funeral equipment of the company. This was done 12 years ago and today the company maintains modern funeral equipment.

In 1927 the adjacent hardware company moved from the block to the north of the old established store and Mr. MacDowell acquired that building, thus increasing the store space by over 100 per cent. In this annex was put a full line of dishes, toys, kitchen equipment and the rear was shut off as a modern funeral home. Here is a large store of caskets of several designs. The second floor is used for rug display purposes.

Behind the show room is a workshop for the undertaking establishment and a store room for equipment.

In the rear of the main store is another two-story annex used for the storage of mattresses, springs and bedding equipment and furniture.

With all the space acquired since the original purchase in 1887, the realty holdings of the founder have trebled in space. Double the frontage on Main street was secured by the purchase giving one large display window across the original store and two windows in the north annex.

Mr. MacDowell in an interview Tuesday stated that business in Addison is not what it has been. He feels that the small towns have suffered from motor cars. He feels, with others, that an industry in Addison would improve business here.

In reminiscing, Mr. MacDowell recalled that he has had 3,700 burials since starting in business 50 years ago. This is a record for any undertaker to shoot at even in times of heavy epidemics and periods of sickness.

He remembers coming to Main street and the fact that there is not now a merchant on the street doing business when he came here. However, the Chart store and the Sackett & Taber store are both in business but not under their original managements.

Twenty years ago this coming April a young man sought employment in the furniture and undertaking establishment. He was given a job, but admitted he did not think he would remain there long. However, Guy Mayer has been with the company nearly twenty years and remains there today. The fourth member of the staff is Mrs. Frances Whitmore, accountant.

Mr. MacDowell is meticulous in the matter of keeping records, having accurate records of each year since he has been in business and all files are neatly kept and in order for ready convenience. This is one of the secrets of his success.

With all the business responsibilities, Mr. MacDowell has had time to take part in an active family life with four sons and one daughter. The sons have grown to manhood and sought success in other places. They are: Brundage, a contractor in Chicago; Matthew D., Maywood, Ill., affiliated with the Public Service Company of Illinois; Sidney M., connected with the Melanson Shoe Company of Brewer, Me., but he makes his home in New York; and Jack in Vineland, N. J. The daughter, Lucy, is employed by the Eastman Kodak Company.

In addition to his family life, Mr. MacDowell is a charter member of the Addison Advertising Club, member of the Board of Trustees of the Presbyterian Church and a member of the Masonic Lodge.

He carries as complete a line of merchandise as any dealer in Steuben County regardless of price or quality, however he has striven for quality through his career. He also believes in the adage, "One man's money is as good as another's and has shown no favoritism in his business dealings.

Mr. MacDowell closed his interview by thanking the people of Addison and vicinity for their support which made possible this 50-year record.

E. Stanley Jones Heard By Local Methodists

Local Methodists gathered in the church parlors last Wednesday night to listen to the national broadcast speech of E. Stanley Jones, missionary to India. The internationally known speaker talked on his work and the work of the church. Like gatherings were held in most all Methodist churches throughout the country on that night.

Prior to the talk a social program was held in the local church with various members of the congregation taking part. The program was informal.

Cheney Economy Election Bill Goes Thru Assembly

Albany—An economy measure introduced by Assemblyman Guy W. Cheney, First Steuben District, passed the assembly unanimously Monday night after its sponsor took the floor against Minority Leader Steingut of New York.

Assemblyman Cheney's bill provides that chairmen of election districts of cities shall file returns with the city clerk. The city clerk in turn shall file the returns with the county election commissioner.

As it now stands each district chairman files a report with the county election board. Each chairman is paid $5 a day plus milage allotment.

"This measure will save about $200 annually in Steuben County. About $100 for Hornell and a like figure for Corning." Assemblyman Cheney said.

When the bill came up for vote Steingut objected, asking that it be defeated. He said that it looked like politics.

He stated that it would be giving the filing of election returns to a partisan officer, the city clerk and should therefore be defeated.

However, after Assemblyman Cheney took the floor and explained the measure in detail Steingut, on Cheney's motion, withdrew objections. The measure rode through with unanimous support. It now goes to the senate.

At present, election returns are taken to Bath by eight district chairmen from Corning and 12 from Hornell. Under the new bill the chairmen will give their district returns to the city clerks and the city clerks will file the reports at Bath.

This is a state-wide bill and applies to all cities excepting New York.

Mrs. Grace M. Cocks

The death of Mrs. Grace M. Cocks widow of Alfred Cocks, occurred Wednesday, February 17, at her home in Newark, N. J. following an illness of but five days. Funeral services were held at nine o'clock Saturday morning and burial was in a Newark cemetery.

Mrs. Grace M. Cocks was born in Cameron May 7, 1880, the daughter of Nancy Allen and John Hamilton Rowan. While still a child she moved with her parents to Newark, N. J., her great-grandfather, Martin Rowan being among the early settlers in Newark and listed in the first Newark directory. She was graduated in early life from St. Joseph's Hospital in Paterson, N. J., and later was made superintendent of St. Mary's Hospital in Passaic. This position she held at the time of her marriage in 1904 to Alfred Cocks, son of the late Col. John S. Cocks, founder of the Mozart Regiment of New York and a member of the New York state senate.

Following the death of her husband a number of years ago Mrs. Cocks joined the staff of the Visiting Nurses Association in Newark where she was employed at the time of her death.

Mrs. Cocks leaves two daughters to mourn her loss, Miss Marie Cocks and Miss Elizabeth Cocks, both of Newark.

The deceased was well known in Addison and the surrounding towns where she often visited.

Mr. Miller and his children hewed a log cabin out of the available timber lands and in February of the following year, Eunice Miller was born, the fourth in a family of 11 children.

Her early youth was spent in house work and she received some education by walking two miles to school. However, she relinquished this at the age of 12, and in spite of this fact by self-education and reading, she has acquainted herself with problems of the past and present and is an inveterate reader of newspapers and poetry.

She distinctly remembers her brothers Charles, William and Roswell going to war from her home and Erastus, who was then in the west, engaging in guerrilla warfare. Mrs. Bates remembers a salt log her father had for catching deer on his farm.

In the log cabin in time there was her father and his family, a brother and his family, making three families with 14 people living in a two-room house until other structures could be built for the other families.

Mrs. Bates lived in Troupsburg all but 23 years of her 101 years. It was there she married Eli Bates. He was born April 30, 1831 and died in 1919. They were married October 2, 1852 in the home of the bride by the Rev. Warren Rice, pastor of the Baptist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Bates worked on the present Baptist Church in Troupsburg. He was master carpenter on the job and she remembers carrying hot dinners from the house, two miles over fields and fences to the church for the men. And when the benches were installed she remembers spending time aiding the men in sandpapering the benches so that the work would be done quicker and they could have a place to worship, believing that next to their home they should build a place to worship their God.

Mr. Bates died October 5, 1919 at the age of 88 years after they had been happily married for 66 years. She then broke up her home, on advice of her children, for three sons were born of the union.

She went to live in Woodhull remaining there about 20 years and three years ago came to this vicinity to make her home with her son Frank Bates. A son Horace is in Grand Forks, North Dakota and she made a trip there in 1933 to visit him.

Mrs. Bates is now making her home with a grandson, Howard Bates. However she insists on doing her own sewing, cooking and housework.

At times she complains of pains from rheumatism and uses a cane but she has been ill seldom in her life. Her face is much younger looking and free from wrinkles than one would suspect. However, when asked to what she attributed her age, she stated, "reading my Bible and having a strong faith and belief in God and smiling". She proved the last point by her humorous retorts to the interviewer's questions.

To show the alertness of her mind, she quoted some poetry that she had learned after she had passed her 100th birthday. The poetry she loves borders on the religious or on love and friendship. One poem on friendship she recited was "God's Providence" which showed the way God points and the other was a poem on "The Fellowship of Friends".

Mrs. Bates contracted whooping cough for the second time after she was 80 years of age and seemed in better health after the sickness. When Mr. Bates died, she took up knitting and rug making for a pastime. In a short period after that she had made 59 rugs of which 17 were given to friends and the balance sold. In this way she felt she was maintaining her independence. She stated she had worked hard throughout her life and probably would until she died.

A routine for her would read something like this: up at eight, routine house duties such as making bed, tending fire, reading the Bible, some newspaper reading, some knitting or sewing and talking to friends. She delights in visiting with people and while recent events confuse her owing to the number of them and the complexity of present life, she can converse on the past much more rapidly, although she resents slurs on the younger generation.

For the past five years her hearing has been slightly impaired and she now reads with bifocals and a reading glass, but sometimes forgets them.

Mrs. Bates is religiouly inclined and several times during the interview spoke of the greater need for God in these days. Her favorite hymns are "Rugged Cross" and "Shall We Meet Beyond the River". Asked as to the type of diet she recommended, she stated she had never been particular.

The 101 years old woman has two sons, eight grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren living. From the present condition of her health, she is destined for many more years of living the happy life. We salute her spirit, not her years.

Youths Organize New M. E. Unit

The Triple V Guild is the name of the new young people's organization sponsored by the Epworth League of the Methodist Church at a meeting held Monday night in the church parlors. This new guild is organized for the purpose of interesting young people in the church and church activities.

Three teams will compete for membership in an informal contest being conducted. The object of the drive is to interest young people not now in the organization, in joining. The programs to be sponsored by the group will consist of part devotional and part social programs with games, refreshments and talks.

The captains of the teams are Wyatt Husted of the Reds, Karl Chupp of the Blues and Wilbur Bulkley of the Whites. Each of these has an assistant leader or lieutenant, these being Betty Pepper for the Reds, Vesta Wilson and Helen Kneaskern for the Whites and Viola Crane for the Blues.

A council on activities was appointed consisting of; Betty Pepper, Helen Kneaskern, Vesta Wilson, Viola Crane, Wyatt Husted, Wilbur Bulkley and Karl Chupp. The council will choose its own officers and transact business for the group. A council meeting is scheduled for March5. The second and fourth Mondays were suggested for Triple V meetings.

OUR USED CARS MAKE GOOD OR WE DO!

THEY DON'T Drink IT ALL

Twenty-five million dairy cows on four and a half million American farms produce more than 100 billion pounds of milk a year. The nation's consumers don't drink all this milk. Only a little over a third of this is sold in the fluid market.

Until the development of ice cream and later dry and evaporated milk, the only market for this other milk was butter and cheese. Since the turn of the century, however, almost every year has seen additional uses for milk. Each has helped to establish a more dependable year-around market for all milk produced.

For 80 years Borden, through research and salesmanship, has carried a leading part in developing uses and markets for milk that have made dairying the greatest source of agricultural income in America.

COUNTY COURT COUNTY OF STEUBEN

Winfield S. Long,
Plaintiff,
—against—
Clyde F. Long, Lucille Long, Larkin Company, Inc., New York State Natural Gas Corp., Security Finance Co., J. B. Maltby, Inc., and Bernard Mullaney, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly granted in the above entitled action, and entered in Steuben County Clerk's Office on the 12th day of January, 1937, I M. Casson, Jr., the undersigned Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the front door of the Law Office of Charles M. Salerno, on Main Street in the Village of Addison, Steuben County, New York, on the 5th day of March, 1937, at 10 o'clock A. M., the premises described in said judgment as follows:

ALL THAT TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND, situate in the Town of Tuscarora, County of Steuben and State of New York, known and distinguished as the saw mill privilege off of lot No. 3, commencing at a point eight rods below the saw mill west of a beech tree; thence running southeast to a stake thirty-two feet; thence running 114 feet in a southerly direction to a stake; thence westerly 163 feet to a board fence, and continuing on until it strikes the bog race; thence northerly along said bog race to fall creek, so called; thence northerly to a board fence; thence northerly to the north bank of said saw mill pond; thence down said mill pond to waste water; thence down said waste water to the mill race near the point of beginning, supposed to contain four acres of land, be the same more or less, together with the rights to repair the banks of mill race, mill dam and bulk-head on said premises. Also the right to use the banking ground on the north side of said mill pond.

ALSO ALL THAT TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND, situate in the Town of Tuscarora, County of Steuben and State of New York, and bounded as follows: Commencing at the southwest corner of Lot No. 16 and running easterly along the south line of said lot eighty rods; thence northerly one hundred and sixty rods along lot No. 16 and continuing along on Lot No. 2, in a straight line until it strikes the fence now on or near the south bank of the Tuscarora Creek; thence along the fence up the bank of said creek as it winds and turns until it strikes the lot known as the saw mill lot, owned and occupied by A. J. Easterbrook; thence around on the south line of said saw mill lot until it strikes the old mill pond; thence up said pond to the bulkhead; thence southerly along the bank of the Tuscarora Creek to a large elm stump; thence southeasterly in range of a maple tree at foot of bank, continuing in a straight line until it strikes the west line of Lot No. 16; thence south along said line to the place of beginning, supposed to contain one hundred and twenty acres of land, be the same more or less. Being parts of lots Nos. 2, 3 and 16. Excepting and reserving any portion of said premises that may have been conveyed to A. and N. P. Railway by E. O. Martin and wife by deed or deeds recorded prior hereto.

ALSO ALL THAT TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND, situate in the Town of Tuscarora, County of Steuben and State of New York, known and distinguished as part of lot No. 3 and bounded and described as follows: on the east by the Menzo Rich farm; on the north by the Tuscarora Creek and Mine Creek; on the west and south by the lands of Rowley property, now supposed to be owned by Alanson Swan. The aforesaid piece of land is that lying next west of said Menzo Rich farm, formerly known as the Eugene Martin farm and also lies south of the said Tuscarora Creek.

ALSO ALL THAT TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND, situate in the Town of Tuscarora, County of Steuben and State of New York, bounded and described as follows: on the north by the highway running by the Eugene Martin farm in said town to Addison Village; on the east by lands of Ernest Sareen and the Eugene Martin farm, now owned by Menzo Rich and the lands of James Coon and O. B. Stratton and on the west by lands now or formerly of O. B. Stratton, now supposed to be owned by Mary A. Stratton, containing about fifteen acres of land, be the same more or less.

All of the above described premises being the same property conveyed to Clyde F. Long and Lucille Long by Winfield S. Long and Susie D. Long by deed bearing date the 31st day of October, 1925 and recorded in Steuben County Clerk's office on February 25, 1926 in Liber 396 of Deeds at Page 341.

Bad Sportsmanship

By Dan Gilbert

Your Washington correspondent is writing this from the Pacific Coast. During the past week, he has crossed the nation, talking with hundreds of ordinary Americans, on trains, at village crossroads, hotels, etc. Everyone is thinking, but not all are talking, about the President's plan for packing the Supreme Court.

The people were stunned by Mr Roosevelt's bold coup, and they are still getting over the shock. Strangely enough, the only group of Americans who weren't amazed and shocked are the arch conservatives. His move was just what they expected. But the average man—and the average man DID vote for Roosevelt — cannot quite figure it out.

The average man believes that the Constitution should be somewhat liberalized to give Congress more power to extend social and labor legislation. But he does respect the Supreme Court, and he does not like bad sportsmanship. And to him, bad sportsmanship is an outstanding objectionable quality of the President's plan to revise the Supreme Court.

An ardent Roosevelt supporter, a railroad conductor, put it this way: "The President is not playing fair with the American people. During the campaign the Republicans all said that Roosevelt would pack the Supreme Court if he got re-elected. Well, I didn't believe them. I thought they were slandering the President. I voted for him partly because of the attacks on him. Well, now Roosevelt comes out and does the very underhanded thing the Republicans said he would do. I think he's let me down."

A school teacher said: "I favor all the New Deal objectives. I should like to see the NRA and AAA re-enacted. But, of course, the men who wrote the Constitution did not make provision for such modern legislative conveniences. The Supreme Court has simply and honestly stated the fact. It is unfair of the President and unworthy of him to attack the Court for being honest. He strikes at the foundations of democracy when he proposes to change the Constitution by appointing judges who will misread it, or read into it something that is not there."

A traveling salesman said: "Roosevelt is trying to pull a fast one. The Court, he says, is overworked. Therefore, he wants to add some extra hands on the High Bench. Well, how about the President's being overworked? He was so busy he couldn't even take time to settle the G. M. strike—for weeks he left the matter to the bungling of poor Madam Perkins."

Those who approve of the President's plan do so on several grounds. One is that the Supreme Court has earned oblivion by its stand. Another is that there is no other way out — an amnedment would take too long. There are various statements of the idea that necessity knows no law. Another position is that Roosevelt aims at helping humanity — and, therefore, the end justifies the means.

Bombshell

The President's explosive demand for reorganization of the Supreme Court bids fair to set off the greatest detonation of verbal fire works seen in the Senate since the days of the slavery controversy. Astute publishers are already planning to add another foot to the classical "five-foot" libraries of "great American debates."

The debate will not take place entirely on the floor of the Senate. Only the negative side will be fully presented there. Most of the great orators and debaters of the Senate are against the move to "pack" the Court. Mr. Roosevelt knows that Senator Borah alone is more than a forensic match for the ablest of his own senatorial spokesmen.

Hence, the President will take to the radio. Although he probably would prefer not to, there is no other way out. Administration strategists are hoping to obscure the fact, which they themselves recognize, that anti-Court senators can't hold up their end of the argument with the judiciary's defenders.

Backfire

Administration aides, as well as everyone else, expected that the so-called "conservative" Democrats in both houses of Congress would bolt the President's program for revamping the Supreme Court. But they were not much disturbed by this—the New Deal has got along so far very nicely without the support of the Glasses, the Byrds, etc.

What has upset the New Dealers is the backfire within their own ranks. Senator Norris has long been the idol of the whole Administration from Mr. Roosevelt on down. He is the one simon-pure embodiment of progressiveness, liberalism and New Dealishness.

When Norris took exception to the President's plan, it became clear that the New Deal itself was splitting on this issue. Another evidence of this fact came when the Texas legislature passed a resolution opposing Court reorganization. Texas is a singularly pro-New Deal state.

Senator Norris has long led the move for judicial reform. he wants to require a two-thirds majority of judges to validate decisions. Another leader in the fight for judicial reform is Senator Burton K. Wheeler, running mate of the elder La Follette in 1924, on an anti-Court platform. Like Norris, however, Wheeler is against the President's plan. The old-time judicial reformists of the Senate approve of Mr. Roosevelt's end, but they refuse to follow him off on a side road which they claim will never lead to the desired destination.

Boomerang

Anti-New Dealers have become so enthused about the volume of backfire against the proposed Supreme Court shake-up that they are talking about the possibilities of the whole thing proving a boomerang.

The man who is rated as having the most chance of boomeranging the President's plan is Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California. Senator Johnson was fighting "economic Royalists" and smashing the railroad "octopus" way back when President Roosevelt was in college.

Unlike some others, Johnson has grown more liberal with the years. In 1932, he openly campaigned for Roosevelt. He has consistently supported virtually all of the New Deal "experiments". In declaring against Court revision, the Californian said he thought the move would lead to dictatorship. In other words, as a liberal and a progressive, Johnson will attack the President's plan as anti-progressive and anti-liberal.

Close observers say that nothing would be more damaging to Administration prestige than the development in the public mind of doubt as to whether the New Deal is progressive.

Lewis' Dilemma

Capital wits are having much fun over contemplating the dilemma in which the settlement of the General Motors strike has put John L. Lewis. They want to know if Lewis has beat the Supreme Court to it in declaring the Wagner Labor Relations Act invalid.

The heart of the Wagner Act, they point out, is that the majority of workers in any plant shall bargain for all other workers, as well as for themselves. The right of a minority of laborers to collective bargaining is not recognized. Heretofore, Lewis has loudly supported this system of having the majority speak for all.

Yet, in the G. M. settlement, he specifically consented to a repudiation of the principle. He approved of letting his sit-down strikers speak and bargain only for themselves. Inferentially, he conceded that, at least in some plants, they are not a majority—yet he insisted on their having a voice as a minority. On the other hand, in the plants where they do have a majority, he failed to insist that they be permitted to speak for all workers, and he left the way open for G. M. to deal with minority groups.

SURROGATE'S COURT COUNTY OF STEUBEN

Child Labor Amendment Hits Snag in New York Assembly

Albany, Feb. 23—"Not only the butcher and baker but also the lawyer and educator are opposed to the child labor amendment", Assemblyman William M. Stuart, Steuben County, Second District, said yesterday as he summed up an extensive survey of public sentiment.

With that statement Assemblyman Stuart announced the results of his survey as three to one against ratification of the amendment.

"The actual number of personal letters from residents of the second district was 120. Of this total 90 were emphatically opposed and 30 emphatically for it", he said.

Assemblyman Stuart pointed out that this count represented letters from individuals and not from organizations.

"I am well pleased with the results for two reasons. First, I was glad to note the interest people showed in government by their detailed analysis of the ramifications of the amendment. Secondly, the decision of the majority substantiates my personal views on the amendment.

"I shall vote against it", Assemblyman Stuart said.

The amendment has passed the state senate and is now before the assembly. A public hearing on it was held February 22.

Assemblyman Stuart revealed that he had made a detailed study of the views he received from his constituents.

"Thirty-four communications were in detail. But five charged it was a move towards dictatorial power.

"However, 57 letters were against giving congress the power that the amendment provides and 21 felt that child labor is a state problem.

"Even many of the people who are opposed to ratification of the amendment are against exploitation of children and their employment in 'sweat shops'. Eighty-three writers objected to strenuous employment of children. While at the same time about half, 41, argued that children should be given light chores to do. It would form habits of industriousness.

"Six letters stated that they were opposed to the amendment because they felt that each home should have the power to guide its offsprings.

Assemblyman Stuart stated that a number of organizations voiced views on the amendment, principally Granges and labor bodies. Granges are against while labor is for ratification. Generally, social workers and ministers favor ratification. However, they are split in their views, he stated. Several writers favored 16 instead of 18 as the age limit.

Assemblyman Stuart quoted the following statements as typical of the views expressed:

"Americans are losing control of their families. Children should either be in school or be employed. I'm unwilling to give Congress this power. Idleness breeds crime. Work, early in life, is a valuable experience.

"Let the child work but insure health and education. Our state laws are sufficient. I am against it because Communists are for it. I oppose centralization of our youth. It is necessary for many children to work.

"Tragedy if adopted . . . the road to fascism. The President said there was no child labor and I believe him. Children should be required to work instead of prohibited.

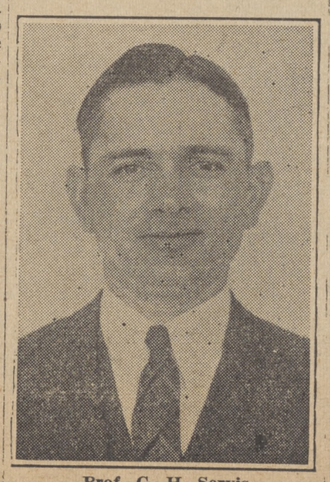
"The amendment would work hardships in some places but it would do good in others. Stop federal government from snooping into our homes.

"The federal government will some day dictate the kind of cereal, hours of eating and the type of fairy tales."

Perhaps the most unique letter Assemblyman Stuart received was a cartoon depicting the sweat shop conditions. Written on it in pencil were these words: ""Vote as you pray, Bill."

Plans Complete For Steuben Co. Potato Meet

The program of the Tenth Annual Steuben Potato Growers Convention opens with a discussion of Fertilizer Practices for 1937 by Prof. G. H. Servis of the College of Agriculture.



Prof. G. H. Servis

The speakers to appear on the program of the Tenth Annual Steuben Potato Growers Convention Thursday and Friday come from four states and will travel several thousand miles to discuss subjects of prime importance to the industry. No expense has been spared to provide an interesting and instructive program at this anniversary meeting. The event promises to be the largest gathering of potato growers ever to assemble in New York State.

Show a Feature

Potatoes will be worth $66 a bushel at the show whic his a feature of the annual convention, at least the first prize award will be made on that basis. Art Wager, show clerk, announces that every entry is to be labeled by the name and address and is to be placed by noon Thursday. All potato growers of Steuben County are eligible to exhibit. The entry is to consist of nine tubers, and there will be classes for Green Mountains and Smooth Rurals.

Many Interesting Exhibits

The life history and the methods of control and eradication of the insects that attack the potato plant will be shown by the exhibit of the College of Agriculture. A similar feature will be the exhibit of the Department of Agriculture and Markets, on grading and marketing. Seed grain and seed potatoes will be displayed by the New York State Seed Improvement and the Certified Seed Potato Growers Association. There will also be shown samples of the variety test grown on the farm of Leonard Drake, Prattsburg, in the past season.

All Growers Invited

A most cordial invitation is extended by the farm bureau to all potato growers of the county to attend and to participate in this meeting. The sessions, held in the auditorium of the Cohocton Union School, begin promptly at 10:30, and the meeting will be concluded at 3:00 in the afternoon. Dinner will be served in the building each day by the Parent-Teacher Association.

NICHOLS

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Bottum and Mrs. Gertrude Orr were in Corning and Knoxville recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle House and family of Painted Post called on relatives here Sunday.

Mrs. Mary Hammond is ill at the home of her grandson, Theodore Smith.

Dr. Bean of Addison was a professional caller here Saturday.

Henry and Clark Bottum were in Elmira last week.

Samuel Heysham and son William of Nelson were in this vicinity Saturday.

D. Lester Sherwood was called to Sayre Saturday by the death of his aunt, Mrs. Mary Reed of Pulteney. Mrs. Reed suffered a fracture of the hip in November and had been a patient at the Robert Packer Hospital since that time.

Former Resident Serves Erie RR 51 Years-Retires

"If I were to start railroading again, I'd think of no better place than Addison on the Erie", were the closing remarks of the Rev. Delbert O. Colburn, former Addisonite, as he retired from the Erie Railroad after 51 years and four months of service. He retired as assistant ticket agent in the Binghamton station where he had served since 1912.

Mr. Colburn was born in this village and began his duties with the railroad here August 15, 1885 as tallyman. He was then 17 years of age. The Rev. Colburn served various capacities here and was transferred to Elmira in 1900 as night ticket clerk, a position he held for nine years. He also served two years in Owego and 11 months in Corning before going to the position he held so many years in Binghamton.

His title to the Methodist ministry came through service to that church for the past 22 years as preacher and teacher. Throughout that time he conducted a Monday night Bible forum in the Binghamton Railroad Y. M. C. A., and has been serving as pastor of Westover M. E. Church, which was constructed under his supervision two years ago. Prior to that he served 13 years in the Endwell M. E. Church.

Politically he is a Democrat and ran for office of Mayor of Binghamton in 1918 and again in 1922. He served on the Board of Education and at one time was its vice president.

The Rev. Colburn was united in marriage to Maude C. Knapp of this village in 1890 and they have five children and 13 grandchildren. He also has a sister, Mrs. Ford Davis of this village.

Addison Town Squad To Play Bath Tonight

The Addison town team journeys to Bath Thursday to meet the Bath Locals on their home court. The close game earlier in the season is a good indication of what tonight's game should be. The entire Addison line-up is expected to be on hand. With Grange, Hewson, Bush, Crane, Rose, Heidrick, Burke, Allen and Little ready to show their worth against Castirlle, Feid, Micolo and Shean. A large following is expected to be with the town teamers in their invasion of the home of their old rivals, Bath.

CCC Activities

The Addison CCC had little difficulty in taking the Monterey CCC Camp in a non-league game Tuesday, February 16 by the score of 46-22. Milhalko tallied the first points of the game for Monterey. Beck immediately retaliated with a sleeper under the basket for Addison and the scoring was on in earnest. Prunko followed with an outside shot to put the local CCC Camp ahead. Only in the first quarter was Monterey really in the game. The score was 9-7 at the end of the first quarter. After that it was only a question of the size of the score. Led by Captain Burke with Campbell and Allen following close behind the Addison camp continued to find the basket for points.

Lippa and Cocuzi stood out for Monterey.

Barrack 2 proceeded to put themselves in a position where they can't be pushed out of first place in the interbarracks championship. By taking barrack 4 by a one-sided score of 28-5 on Tuesday night, barrack 2 made themselves the undisputed champions. Regardless of the outcome of the remaining games on the schedule barrack 2 can't lose the leadership of the league.

The boxers of the local camp took part in the benefit match for the American Red Cross held in Hornell on Tuesday night. Eight CCC Camps participated in the 15 matches on the program witnessed by a capacity crowd.

Famighetti won the only match for Addison with a decision over Augullwicy of the Fellmore Camp. Iraggi got a draw with Haynes of the Machias Camp. Aaconetti lost a quick decision to Hogue of Machias. Hogue is the district heavyweight champion. Polino lost to Burke of the Birdsall Camp in the other bout Addison took part in.

Sidelights on the Bradford Contest

When one of the Bradford girls was injured and the coach was trying to ease her pain, a bunch of young nit-wits in the front rows mocked her. They should have been spanked as babies.

Another thing which annoyed me was the boys of Addison jeering, hooting and yelling when the Bradford team were shooting and then being silent when the Addison team members were shooting. And basketball is supposed to develop sportsmanship.

The cheering section of Addison is well organized and deserves a lot of credit for its continued support of the team throughout the entire game.

The attendance of high school students at this contest was not all it should have been.

Who were the young fellows who were shooting rubber bands?

Addison sure had a "night on" Friday for poor old Bradford did not have a chance when the machine began to clock.

The Rambler

Members of the staff of the Southern Tier Newspapers join with others of the community in extending to Sidney D. Mac Dowell a hearty congratulation on his observance of his 50th year in business.

—o—

Speaking of Mr. Mac Dowell, you know he has a faculty of letting others do the talking, and the first time I met him I was a little afraid of him. However, I have been hearing so many good things about him that I realize that under that silent exterior is a great guy and I have vowed never to be afraid of him again.

—o—

From time to time little stories are told here to illustrate that truth is stranger than fiction. Add this. An American soldier was cleaning up a trench after a hard battle in France. In one shell hole he found an English and a German soldier dead, but their hands were clasped in the fraternal clasp of his own fraternity and beneath their tunics each wore the fraternal emblem.

—o—

"Love is everywhere" sort of expresses the universality of that germ. The Rambler was approached by Bobby Russ the other day and asked to place an item in the column. Believing in freedom of speech for all and no restrictions on age in the column, we reprint Bobby's contribution, "Donald Russ and William Kelly have a little girl whose name is Betty Manzella. They have a little fun with her but poor William is out, for Donald is acquainted especially with Betty." Ages about 9 years.

—o—

Faith in God and a smile are Mrs. Eunice Bates' recipe for longevity. And she should know, being 101 years old Monday. I should say 101 years young for she has the vitality and mind of a woman many years her junior. I will not congratulate her for that has been ably done by others, but I will wish her many more pleasant years.

—o—

And speaking of Mrs. Bates, she expressed to the rambler an idea he has heard many times. The lonesomeness of growing old. While she is abreast of her time she is not of it, while she has gone on friends have passed away and with the years has come a dimmed sight and thoughts of the past and lonesomeness.

—o—

Well, folks, the caucus meetings are over and the next thing on the political menu is the election to be held March 16. If you have a vote and did not attend either caucus, don't beef about the candidates for you had your chance and failed.

—o—

The Rambler has received several unsigned communications relative to various affairs. I wish those who send letters would sign them. Not that I want to publish their names, for I won't if they request it, but as a sign of good faith and to show me that some practical joker is not at work. Please sign your contributions and tell me whether you want your name attached.

—o—

I have never seen a community where there were so many people over 70 years of age who are so active. I guess it is the way they take care of themselves in this vicinity.

—o—

How is this for luck? A central New York man won a trip to Florida and return and while in Florida he won a trip to Cuba with all expenses paid.

—o—

You may have heard this, but it is still pretty good. Sit down strikers were in the Vincent Bendix plant. Bendix makes automotive parts. Well, he did not get the law on the men, but hired 25 of the best looking girls in town and placed them in the factory and told them to work on the men. He then circulated word to the wives of the men as to what was going on and when the wives ordered the men away from these flirting girls the strike was broken.

—o—

Despite the fact the river is not frozen, skating parties are enjoying themselves at the old brick yard at the foot of Cowley hill. I see the young people going with their skates and hockey sticks and a friend tells me he saw 40 down there one night last week.

—o—

Ralph Bentley walked into the motor vehicle bureau in Schenectady for his truck license. The clerk said, $43.70. Right said Ralph, here it is counted and he lifted a pail of pennies to the counter and walked out with his license. A checkup lated in the day revealed there were exactly 4,470 pennies in the pail.

—o—

The Rambler extends a welcome to the Rev. Fr. J. Edward McKay, administrator for St. Catherine's parish here. While I did not know Father Moffett I have met Father McKay and feel that he will be well-liked by Addisonites, on whose behalf I extend him a welcome.

—o—

My first caucus here was tamer than any church meeting I have attended since coming to Addison. The machinery was about as smoothly oiled as one could wish. Congratulations Mr. Sisto.

—o—

That's all.

Post Imperials Trimmed By Addison Town Squad

The Addison town team trounced the Painted Post Imperials 51 to 37 Thursday night in the old gym. Addison led all the way but the Posters were only a few points behind at the half. The sharp shooting of the town team was responsible for the victory as the defense on both sides was very weak. Wilson, local boy playing for the Post team, led the invaders attack.

Heidrick led the scoring column for the game with 18 points to his credit. Crane was second in the list finding the hoop for a total of 14 points. Grange, third in line, slipped 13 counters through the meshes.

Wilson and Carpenter, tied for fourth place with 11 points apiece. Jones came fifth with a total of nine counters.

Shippers Warned Relative To Shipping Certificate

Interstate trucking is now governed by the Interstate Commerce Commission with the result that truckers and shippers are being warned relative to violations of interstate shipping. Only trucks which cross state lines are affected by the laws and then only those shipping for hire. Privately owned trucks are not affected.

Each truck must have a certificate of convenience issued by the commission. Those shipping interstate by truck are asked to cooperate by asking trucking companies for their certificate. Shippers are also asked to secure the carrier's rates, as rebates are not permitted and it is well to know the definite rate.

Agents of the commission ride the highways frequently and violators will be severely dealt with by the commission.

AHS Closes Season Trimming Bradford—Girls Win Also

High School Squad Organizes with New Lineup—Combination Proves Too Fast for Visitors—Marks Last Game of Season for the Knights—Girls Have No Trouble.

The Addison Knights ended their season with a 27-21 victory over Bradford Friday evening at the high school auditorium. The Maroon and Gray clad warriors led the Blue and Yellow of the invaders from the very beginning of the game. Coach Hewson sent a complete revised starting line-up in to the game. This new quintet placed Hopper and Heidrick at forward, Thomson at center, with Orr and Hargrave in the guard berths.

The only trouble the Knights had was during the third quarter when the Central school lads led by Stewart, put on a determined rally.

Scoring honors went to Thomson who proved that his place is at center by collecting 10 points. Hargrave hit the net for a total of seven points, three double deckers and a foul. Orr left his guard position to score two baskets.

Stewart led the invaders' scoring with a total of 12 counters, while Sutryk was the only other of the blue team to find the hoop more than once.

Hargrave opened the game with a foul, Hopper followed this with a pop-shot from the foul lane. Stewart scored on a quick break. Hopper made a free throw good and missed the second try only to have Hargrave tap the rebound in. Orr sank a pop shot from outside the foul circle. Poproky retaliated with a steve. The initial quarter ended 8 to 4 in Addison's favor.

Thomson started the ball rolling in the second period sending two pop shots through the hoop in the first minute of play. Stewart made a double-decker for the invaders. Triches made a free throw good. Stewart converted two tries from the fifteen-foot line. Thomson made a clean pop shot which never touched the rim. Stewart converted another foul. Thomson ended the half with his fifth basket. Addison led 17 to 9 at the half.

The Addison girls won a 19 to 9 victory over the Bradford girls in the preliminary contest. The results were never in doubt despite the work of Horton who made 7 of Bradford's 9 points. The Addison team carried the game to the invading team keeping them on the defense most of the time.

Horton topped the scoring column for the game. Burlingame led the Addison scoring as usual with a total of six points. Space, Addison center, and Perry, a substitute who until this game has been unable to find the basket while in action, each were good for five points. Little contributed three points to the home team.

The guard combination of Beers, Crawford and Manson held the invading lassies to one basket in the last half.

Future Farmers Win First Place In BB League

Addison won the championship of the first divison of the Steuben County F. F. A. League for the fourth year in succession, as a result of the 47-6 victory over the Bradford F. F. A. quintet by the Addison Aggies. The play-off with the second division winners, Hammondsport, for the county title is being arranged.

The Addison team encountered little or no difficulty in scoring on the Central school team. The first squad was in the game only one quarter, that was long enough for them to score 29 points.

The Aggie seconds finished the game in a great fashion. Clark getting six counters and W. Johnson collecting four for himself.

Phillips, with 13 points, topped the scoring. Long played inspired ball, contributing 12 counters to the Aggies total. Oakden, with 10 points, was the other big scorer for Addison. Bennett collected all but one of the Bradford team's six points.

Mae West Gives Filmer Break

Mae West always "likes to give a guy a break," so George Clemens became the directing cinematographer on "Klondike Annie," her new picture, which opens Sunday at the Avon Theatre.

The blonde star likes to have the same crew work with her in the pictures she makes. She particularly likes Karl Struss. Academy award winner, as cameraman, but he was busy on Bing Crosby's "Anything Goes." Once before the same situation arose, and Crosby released Struss, taking Charles Lang. This time, however, Lang was shooting Marlene Dietrich, and consequently Miss West couldn't get Struss.

"O. K.," said Mae, "lets's use George Clemens."

"But," she was told, "he's never been a first cameraman on any picture."

"I know," said Mae, "but he worked with Struss on the two pictures Karl shot for me, and he knows what I like."

So Clemens made his bow as a first cameraman on "Klondike Annie," shooting Hollywood's most important screen personality.

Clemens has been with Paramount 15 years. He started as a youngster, and has spent 12 years in the camera department. Six of these have been as Struss' "second."

"Klondike Annie" is a story in the style of Miss West's two most popular productions, "She Done Him Wrong," and "Belle of the Nineties." Like them, it is set in the gusty '90's, with Miss West cast as a lady who spreads her own particular brand of sweetness and light along San Francisco's Barbary Coast and in Alaska during the gold rush days. Victor McLaglen plays opposite the star.

Presbyterian Groups See Movie of Missions In African Wilds

Forty people attended the Lenten supper and service at the Presbyterian Church last evening. The supper was a joint affair with members of the Gillet Club and Tuxis Club attending.

The feature of the evening was the showing of three reels of movie films on Africa. The pictures showed development of the native races on the dark continent from the time of the settlement of Ecquador to the present. The travels and work of Livingstone were traced while views of improved conditions among the natives showed the effect of the work of Christian missionaries in Africa.

Arthur Peck, science teacher at Addison High School, operated the movie projector.

Pratt To Talk To Masons at Rededication

Hon. George W. Pratt will be the speaker at the Masonic Rededication services to be held Tuesday night in the Masonic Temple here. This service is part of a state program being sponsored by the Grand Lodge. The rededication service consists of a renewal of the pledges of the various degrees and a rededication of all to the purposes of the order.

A banquet will preceed the services in the hall here. This dinner will begin at 7 o'clock. Master John Russ is in charge of the affair and he is being assisted by a committee of the members.

In conjunction with this service, a religious rededication service will be held in the Presbyterian Church Sunday, March 7, at which time Rev. John V. Axtell, lodge chaplain, will speak using "Rededication" as his theme.

The so-called child labor amendment will be up for ratification or rejection in the New York Assembly in about two weeks. It had been expected the lower house of the state legislature would vote early this week but assemblymen are wishing to get more accurate views of the sentiment back home. The amendment if ratified by enough states would give congress the "power to limit, regulate and prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age". The senate has already voted for ratification, for this amendment which many churchmen and other citizens believe would take supervision of the family out of the home.

Game Club To Buy Building For Meets

The Addison Fish and Game Club is contemplating the erection of a club house where the members can meet and also where trap and skeet shooting can be held and where coon races can be run. Ray Stewart and John Russ reported on prospective sites at a meeting of the club held Wednesday night in the Phoenix Hose rooms, town hall. Hugh Varn presided as president of the club and asked for the report of the club committee.

Sites considered were the John Davis farm, two miles east of the village on the Corning road, the Pat Tobin farm on the Goodhue and the present club grounds which are leased on the McCarthy farm. Owing to the typography of the ground at the present farm where spectators can view events from an advantageous hillside, it was deemed advisable to try to erect a club here.

Members of the unit have $150 on hand and will need about $400 to build a proposed club house with a 40 foot front and an open back where members may stay in inclement weather and target shoot. It is proposed to hold a series of events soon to aid in raising money for the building. The first event proposed is a smoker and boxing show in the True Gym building. The committee on sites was discharged with thanks.

Rolland Hadlock was appointed a committee to seek permission of the Phoenix Hose Company to use the rooms for meetings for another year. Fred Hauff donated $10 toward the new club. This was money he received from the county federation for managing a coon chase last fall.

George M. Smith, Fred Hauff, Ray Stewart with Hugh Varn as chairman will investigate possibilities of the McCarthy farm.

John Davis, Eugene Wade, John Russ, Wendell Hewson and Rolland Hadlock were appointed a committee of ways and means to determine fund-raising possibilities for the club house.

After the meeting Wednesday a supper was served by the members of the house committee.

M. E. Ladies Sponsor Fish Supper Tonight

The women of the North Circle, Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Church are sponsoring a fish supper to be held in the church parlors, this Thursday night. The supper is being given to add to the church fund. Baked fish and escalloped potatoes are the chief items of the menu which will be complete with several kinds of pies. Mrs. Walter Perkins is general chairman and her co-workers are Mrs. George Smith and Mrs. Frank Crawford. Serving will begin at 5:30 o'clock.

John H. Johnson Dies at Home on Front Street

John H. Johnson, 87, died Monday February 22 at his home, Front St., at 5:45 o'clock after an illness of four weeks. Death was caused by complications and hardening of the arteries.

Mr. Johnson was born in Caton, Steuben County, June 12, 1849, a son of the late James and Dinah Beamis Johnson. He attended school in Caton and upon leaving school engaged in farm work with his parents until a young man. He left the farm to go to Potter County, Pennsylvania, where he was active many years.

Mr. Johnson was a saw filer by trade and followed this throughout his life until his retirement a few years ago. He first worked for Avery & Avery, Potter County, Pa., in their saw mill and then went with William Currier in Colesburg, Pa. Mr. Johnson then went to Dunleavy, Va., for three years, returning to Jamison City, Pa., where he worked for the Central Pennsylvania Lumber Company. The company then sent him to Galeton and from there he went to the Emporium Lumber Company where he remained several years.

Seventeen years ago he came to Addison and has since lived here, having been employed by the Park, Winton and True Company for nine years. Since leaving them he has been farming in a small way at his home.

While in Galeton he was active in fraternal affairs, being a charter member of Coudersport Lodge, Odd Fellows and was also a member of the Knights of the Maccabees. He served a term as supervisor in the Potter County Board of Supervisors.

Miss Sally Ann Perce and John H. Johnson were united in marriage in Coudersport October 21, 1876. This union was broken December 23, 1923 when Mrs. Johnson died.

There survives, two sons, Dewitt at home and Rufus of this village also, two daughters, Mrs. Ed. Skillman, at home and Mrs. George Ludwig, Galeton, also 16 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held from the family home Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be in the Addison cemetery.

Oyster Supper Served By Men of the Legion

Men of the American Legion served an oyster supper to the members of the auxiliary and families at a Washington's birthday party held Monday night in the post rooms. William Lewis was chairman for the committee and he was assisted by Francis Edwards, Hubert Orr and William E. Newman. After the supper an informal program of entertainment and cards was held. The next meeting of the post will be March 3.

Sisto GOP Choice for Third Term as Mayor

The Republican caucus held Saturday night in the village hall voted unanimously to have the present Mayor Angelo Sisto bear the party standard for the coming election March 16. A large crowd turned out for the affair believing there would be a contest which did not materialize.

Supervisor Walter M. Goff opened the meeting and Attorney Charles Salerno moved that Maurice E. Miller, editor of the Advertiser, be elected chairman. This was unanimous, the first in the series of the night's resolutions which were moved without dissention.

Mr. Goff then moved that Dr. Amos Stiker and W. B. Leete be appointed secretaries. This was seconded and moved as was Mr. Salerno's resolution nominating Bliss Weatherby and Peter Laffkas as tellers. Both were sworn in by Chairman Miller, but did not serve as the elections were by acclamation.

Mr. Goff then said, "It needs no flowering speech to introduce the man I have in mind. He has the interest of the community at heart and has made a success of his own business as you all know. He is a man the people of Addison will like to support and I nominate Angelo Sisto to succeed himself." There were no other nominations and Mr. Sisto was nominated by acclamation.

Chief of Police Elmer C. Bovee moved the nomination of Hubert Orr as trustee to succeed himself and John Russ moved the nomination of N. B. Phelps, and both were nominated by acclamation. They are the present trustees.

Mr. Salerno then moved that Attorney Charles L. Crane be made a member of the committee to fill vacancies in place of Lester Andrews, who has left the village. It was pointed out that it has been the custom to appoint someone within the vacated district and Mr. Salerno then moved that John Russ be elected and this was done. The members of the committee are: Walter Goff, Dr. Stuart H. Bean and Mrs. C. L. Crane.

There was no other business to come before the meeting and Mr. Miller asked for a motion to adjourn which was given by Attorney Salerno and the caucus was over, a few minutes after it began.

Union Service Curtailed By Lack of Lights

Union church services were disrupted Sunday night by the lack of electric lights. The service was held in the Presbyterian church, being the third of such services for the month of February.

Candles were used for lights on the rostrum. Hymn singing was done from memory by the congregation.

A short prayer and song period was held after which members of the clergy the Rev. John V. Axtell the Rev. Kenneth E. Arnold and the Rev. Garland G. Lacey gave their versions of how they happened to enter the ministry.

Local Leaders Plan Soil Conservation Program

Several farmers interested in the soil conservation program being sponsored in Steuben county met Wednesday morning at the Addison Grange Hall. The meeting was called by Lynn Bookout, assistant Farm Bureau agent for this county. Ambrose Scudder acted as chairman.

The group present elected three directors to represent this section of the county on a county committee. Three directors are to be elected from each of the four sections of th county and this group will formulate plans for the administration of the funds sent into this county. A meeting of these directors will be held in Bath Saturday afternoon.

Farmers will be paid, during this year, for lime and fertilizer and grass seed which are put on in approved amounts and under approved conditions.

Notices will be sent to farmers in the various townships in the county as to when a meeting will be held in their vicinity. At this meeting supervisors of the soil conservation program will explain the program.

Mrs. Leah Brown, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Kennedy and children Dick and Gene called on friends in Woodhull Sunday.
